Such remarks as these were being address by a crowd of taunting street urchins to a party of four men, three of whom seemed pretty near being old men, for their faces, unshaven for a day or two had a stubble of white beard, their backs were bent a little, and their galwas stiff. Yet these venerable were dressed up in jaunty baseball suits, with natty caps and jackets, and zonave trousers coming just below the knee, and below those, red stockings and baseball shoes. Every man of them carried a bat, as if he were on the way to play a game at ball; but, erected on the shoulders of each, was a big

It would be no exaggeration to say that it costs New York city every year for sock and stockings for her female population a round $2,000,000, or enough to maintain nearly 20,000 persons, a whole city, for a year in food.-Louisville Courier-Journal.

"Sandy" Bowers and His Told Mine-Lemmel S., familiarly known as Sandy Bowers, one of the first locaters on the Gold Hill croppings of the Comstock, had twenty feet of wonderfully rich ground, from which he realized over $1,000,000 in a much realized over $1,000,000 in shorter time than it took him to spend it. He bought the best ranch in Washoo valley, and on it built a large mansion of fine hewn granite, sumptuously furnished throughout, costing nearly $500, 000. He took his wife to Europe where he bought stacks of fine oil paintings, and piles of statuary about which he knew nothing but the cost, and he didn't care anything for that-what he wanted was "grnament" for his house Sandy's mine soon gave out, and h was fir ancially embarrassed when he died. His widow lives among friends in California. Sandy is buried beneath lofty pines on the steep base of the Nevadas, a hundred yards above his lost home, and the Bowers mansion stands as a monument to the charac teristically reckless expenditures of a Countock millionaire.—Cor Chicago

The Nationa Observer (London) tells of a French wine manufacturer who has discovered that the vinous bouquet is a matter not of original constituents but of fermenting agents, and who has succeeded in making delicious vintages, both red and white, to say nothing of irresistible braudies, out of barley, without so much as a suspicion of grape juice in them. The consumers of these beverages keep up bygone traditions by still speaking knowingly of vintages and bouquets and cromas and styles

The Scientiste American has the following: "A novel plan for ex inguishing a church debt has been hit upon in Melbourne. The church committee--or vestry, as the case may be-divide the total debt among themselves and each man insures his life for the amount that man insures his life for the amount that falls to his share. The policies are transferred to the church, and the annual payments on them are made out of the collections. Then, of course, as the members of committee 'drop off,' the sums insured on their lives drop by, and hater, when the last committeeman is dead, the last instalment of the church debt will be paid. The plan has the merti—if mert it be—of throwing the whole of the responsibility for the continuance of the indebtedness upon Providence."
